

[Economic Empowerment for Latinos in the USA \[1\]](#)

The Hispanic community in the United States is approximately 46 million people and continues to grow.

Consumer debt issues across the USA and the globe is at an all time high. Every day foreclosures occur on homes or someone is denied a school loan as a result of the struggling economy. Families are devastated and in need of assistance from their friends and community.

Ventanabierta is leading the way to how debt is treated in the Latino community. Under the Obama administration, government programs such as TALF and TARP allow minorities in the USA to seek help and receive assistance. Ventanabierta collects information on current and future debt in order to bundle it to leading financial institutions. They are acting as a vehicle to drive a social movement within the hispanic community which in turn will help individuals obtain loans. This social movement has a strength in numbers.

Please peruse the website (www.VentanAbierta.com [2]) and you can see for yourself a social movement in the making. What do you think? Will this type of Economic Empowerment work?

Forums:

- Economic Empowerment [3]

URL de origen: <http://www.aspira.org/es/economic-empowerment-latinos-usa>

Enlaces:

[1] <http://www.aspira.org/es/economic-empowerment-latinos-usa>

[2] <http://www.ventanabierta.com>

[3] <http://www.aspira.org/es/forums/public-policy/economic-empowerment>